

We live on an amazing planet with many cultures. The art of various cultures looks beyond this planet. My art does that too. My feeling is that we are so small in the larger scheme of things. There is the universe, the cosmos and string theory. Then there is the other direction of molecules, atoms and quantum mechanics. Can art convey these directions? I would say that they give the artist endless possibilities. I have only scratched the surface, but I have enjoyed that scratch, and I look forward to continuing my journey!
